Vessel Management On-Board and Ashore Today & Tomorrow

As an NGO, The Nautical Institute has a voice at IMO, and with the impending amendments to STCW, the seminar will investigate relevant issues and challenges in preparing officers for senior positions on the vessels of the future.

- Vessel owners – What issues are currently being experienced in manning and operating vessels and what are your projections for the future?
- Pilots – How is the pilot's role altering with changes to crew sizes and multi-national manning, and how can we identify and train the pilots of the future?
- P&I Clubs/Legal – How has the business changed, and what are the current gaps and projections for the future?
- Training & mentoring – How can we prepare our future officers for senior responsibilities at a younger age, incorporating formal risk management and human factors components?
- New entrants – What are their career goals in conjunction with family commitments, and how can we meet their expectations to retain sufficient qualified and experienced candidates for senior on-board positions?

The British Columbia Branch is proud to be selected by NIHQ as host of the 2011 Nautical Institute AGM, in conjunction with a Command Series Seminar whilst showcasing both major cities of Vancouver and Victoria, and the many diverse marine transportation systems on the West Coast of Canada.

To increase the potential business content, our AGM and Seminar will be followed by the BIMCO BGM in Vancouver June 6th to 8th plus a series of Seatrade events and conferences. IFSMA's AGA is also being held in Halifax, NS from 8-9th June preceded by a CMMC conference there from 6-7th June (see details in March Seaways).

Canada's West Coast is an exceptional vacation experience, with numerous local attractions and the starting point for Alaska cruises, discovery voyages throughout the expansive British Columbia coast, and land tours through the scenic Rockies and Northern British Columbia. This is an ideal opportunity to mix business with pleasure and bring the family out to the West Coast of Canada to attend these events and experience an exceptional vacation, which can be tailored exactly to meet your expectations.
